Welcome

Dear Cattlemen,

We welcome you to our annual Two Year old bull sale in Bowman, ND on January 17, 2025. We would like to extend to everyone wishes of health and happiness this NEW YEAR.

We will be Offering 70 Registered coming Two-Year Old bulls born in May and June with enhanced epds with a HD 50K test on each bull with the individual lot percentages posted in the catalog for your reference. We will once again be having the bulls videoed and on DV Auction for viewing and bidding if you are not able to attend the sale in person. The bulls and catalog will also be on our website www.urlacherangus.com. We will have information in the catalog to help in accomplishing this. We would rather see you sale day in Bowman to view and bid on our bulls, but this will give you another option if you can't attend in person. We will have a supplement sheet with scrotal information available sale day. We will offer free keep and care of the bulls until spring at which time they will be fertility tested and delivered to your ranch. The bulls are fed the same ration upon returning after the sale to continue their growth and development to ensure our customers a sound and healthy bull ready for years of use.

As yearlings the bulls are fed the same as in the past, the ration is still based on a 3lb. daily gain. We feel this allows the bulls to developed at a pace that allows for longevity and soundness as they are used in their future breeding. They have responded very well to this ration and we can see positive differences in their appearance as well. These bulls will be summered on grass just as in the past.

Both yearlings and Two year old bulls are fed to be productive and sound for many years of reliable heavy service. The bulls are not over fed and will continue to grow on their ration until delivery in April or May.

Our breeding program focuses on maternal and growth traits, while keeping positive carcass performance. We select bulls in the top of the Angus breed and use an extensive AI program, to strengthen these traits in our cow herd. Also we have added some powerful herd sires for both natural and A. I. breeding to continue enhancing these traits. These bulls will be able to move freely and cover large country without losing body condition.

The bulls are completely guaranteed for a 90 day breeding period. The bulls will be fed till delivery free of charge. They will be fertility tested and receive breeding shots prior to being delivered.

We will be working with Martin Trudeau Insurance Agency for our sale. Mortality insurance is available on these bulls and they offer an accident policy. Urlacher Angus will pay half of the premium on the policies that are taken out for accident and injury. We will explain it more sale day or if you have questions you can call me.

The bulls are always on display and everyone is welcome to come and view them prior to the sale. We will be moving the bulls to Bowman on January 15th, at which time they can be viewed at the sale barn.

We look forward to seeing you on Friday, January 17, 2025. We will have lunch prior to the sale and refreshments after the sale. If you have any questions feel free to contact us. As in the past you have our complete satisfaction on all phone orders.

Sincerely,
Gregg Urlacher

American Angus Association Genomic Enhanced EPDs

Genomic, or DNA, test results are used to enhance predictability of current selection tools, to achieve more accuracy on EPDs for younger animals, and to characterize genetics for traits that are difficult or expensive to measure, such as feed efficiency, carcass traits in breeding stock or maternal traits in bulls. With the investment in genomic technology, animals who are previously placed into single animal contemporary groups benefit by receiving GE-EPD rather than interim-EPD calculations increasing the value of individual predictions.

Genomic-enhanced EPD (GE-EPD) are important because they utilize genomic test results in addition to pedigree, performance and progeny data for increased reliability of an animal's EPD (Fig. 1). Depending on the trait, GE-EPD on unproven bulls have the same amount of accuracy as if they had already sired 10-36 calves. If genomic results are received by Friday on any given week, EPD changes will be seen the following Friday's weekly genetic evaluation.

Genomic impact on the EPD

In the American Angus Association weekly genetic evaluation, the genomic results are incorporated into the evaluation using a single step method to calculate EPDs. Incorporating genomic results in this way helps to better define the genetic relationship among animals. With the traditional pedigree based approach (EPDs predictions without genomics), the relationships between animals is determined by pedigree alone. Pedigree would dictate all full-sibs, for example, would have a genetic relationship to one another of 0.5, and the relationship between grand-parent and grand-progeny would be 0.25. Because of the way DNA is inherited (passed down), differences in these relationships are present. The animal's genotype will allow us to determine, for example, which flush-mates, or siblings, are more genetically related. In fact, genomic testing allows all pedigree relationships be better defined.

These relationships are quantified using SNP data (genomic results) known as an animal's genomic relationship. For example, if a newly tested animals shows to have a strong genomic relationship to an animal who is proven to excel for a trait like Marbling, than the newly-tested animal will increase for Marbling EPD. On the contrary, if an animal it found to be more related to a low performing animals in the pedigree its EPDs will adjust accordingly.

Animals more closely related to ancestors with large amounts of actual performance data (weaning, weights, yearling weight, carcass data, etc.) and genomic results recorded will experience a greater benefit from genomic testing than those with less data recorded in the Association's database.

Importance of phenotypic performance data

Genomic testing is one more tool for breeders to use to more accurately predict the future performance of animals as parents in the population, but this is not a replacement to performance data recording. Breeders sometimes ask if it is no longer necessary to collect weights and measures (e.g. weaning weights, scan/carcass data, and heifer breeding records). On the contrary, phenotypic measures continue to be an important part in further development of improved genomic panels and the refinement of this technology over time.

Percent ranks provided with genomic results

Percent ranks (1-100) are provided by the American Angus Association to assist in establishing direction of interest for each trait, as illustrated in Table 2. If you are making selection decisions for traits that have an EPD provided by the Association, then the EPDs should be considered the selection tool of choice. The EPD and accuracy account for all sources of information available on the animal of interest (e.g., pedigree, own record, weights/measures, genomic results).

Using EPD and genomic percentile ranks separately leads to double counting information and will lessen selection efficiency. With that, the EPD provides the most accurate and up-to-date information as it is updated every week; whereas, genomic percent ranks only update once a year and are a by-product of the system.

Conclusion

Genomic-enhanced EPDs are the best estimate of an animal's genetic value as a parent combining all available sources of information. Genomics permit higher prediction accuracies for younger animals and characterizes genetics for traits where it's difficult to measure the phenotype.
